Indianapolis, IN, July 2019 - ROI Search Group (ROISG), Fishers' only woman-owned executive search, talent acquisition, and consulting firm with a focus on life-sciences and healthcare, announced today an exclusive new program to benefit clients and their local communities. Honing in on a positive, client-centric way to exceed the bar of expected results, ROISG solidified their commitment to community and mission of giving back by revealing their intent to give 1% of revenue earned from each client to the charity of their choice.

The ROISG Gives Back Program continues the philanthropic objective of ROI Search Group. The firm is focused on a curated approach as a business and for their clients. Modernizing industry practices with this value-add, the talent acquisition and search group pride themselves on being unique by design. The program is set to funnel much needed funds towards those who can benefit most from a charitable contribution. ROI Search Group has always had a focus on community, as well as excellence in client satisfaction and retention. Their steady stream of clientele is set to provide a generous selection of causes to support that are close to their hearts. This new initiative marks their enthusiastic inclination to count their client's neighbors as their own extended network, along with reaffirming their priority to make a difference at a community level.

Stacey McCreery, Founder and President of ROI Search Group, stated, “We are very proud to be able to offer ROISG Gives Back to our clients. As one of our 12-Core Beliefs, giving to the community is a principle we are founded upon as a company. To be able to share in the charitable passions of our clients is a dream come true. We are more than just a search firm. We are in the business of connecting organizations with unfindable talent, the hard-to-find candidate, the perfect candidate for their culture. This program allows us to reach out further than we would have been able to before, and to extend our charitable giving to interests that are important to our clients. We're thrilled to announce ROISG Gives Back is up and running!”
